Letters to Captain Atari

Captain
Atari

Vidella, Brains and I have had a lot of fun sifting through your letters. We appreciate every one of them, and hope that our Atari Liaison staff at Ingersoll Electronics have solved all your problems and enthused over your creative efforts on our behalf.

We really enjoy all the notes and drawings from your children and thank our many adult correspondents for your ideas, protestations and generally putting pen to paper.

Here's a selection of communications from our readers - each one gets £5 from us. Keep on writing, and we'll keep on sending the cheques for any letters or drawings we publish.

Dear Captain Atari...

My family and I have great fun with Atari. Our problem is that we cannot get the cartridges without waiting, phoning and generally pestering our supplier. So please, Captain Atari, get your super-powers going and GET THE CARTRIDGES ON THE MARKET.

Dear Captain Atari...

Each night I try to play with our Atari video game but my mom will not let me, she watches the television so I go upstairs and play. I think all of your video cartridges are fantastic. I am writing to tell you how much I like your video game.

Paul D. Wooldridge
Aged 11, Upper Gornal

Aren't you lucky to be a two-television family, Paul!

Dear Captain Atari...

I have found that I can get even more fun from the cartridges by making up my own variations. Here are three examples:

Surround - play game 7 (erase, speed up) but only make a few squares on the screen, then you can play a kind of Indy 500, avoiding the squares.

Outlaw - play game 3 (blowaway) and destroy all of the cactus. Then place both players on expert and you can play 'quick on the draw' with someone else saying 'fire'.

Space War - if you find the space shuttle games too easy, play with alternate controllers on a 2-player game to see if you can get 19!

Anyone got any more ideas for variations? £5 for each letter we publish.

Dear Captain Atari...

You often talk about your girlfriend Vidella, but we don't think you have a girl. Why hasn't she been in the magazine? We think she looks like this.

Karen (6) and Emma (4)
Chobham, Surrey.

Sorry, sorry, Karen and Emma. Next time I'll make sure Vidella shows herself. She's not quite how you picture her!
